Stuart Dunfermline: Royalty, Witches and War

Eila Williamson
University of Glasgow

Queen's House

Queen's bedchamber, c.1610

Stirrup Cup

Alexander Seton

- 1604–22 Chancellor of Scotland
- 1605 Earl of Dunfermline

http://webdb.ucs.ed.ac.uk/witches/ Survey Database, Survey of ...

File Edit View Favorites Tools Help

EBL Reader - The History ... Suggested Sites Amazon eBay Web Slice Gallery WildTangent Games

Survey of Scottish Witchcraft Database

Survey of Scottish Witchcraft
Scottish History, School of History and Classics, The University of Edinburgh, Scotland

Welcome to the Survey of Scottish Witchcraft Database

To begin exploring the nearly 4,000 records of accused witches and documentation of witchcraft belief, click on one of the options listed below. Should you encounter any difficulties we have help pages along the way to guide you through your searches and to help you interpret your results. We have also provided a comprehensive Glossary of terms used in these web pages that also includes other helpful lists and supplemental reference materials. When you click on the glossary link, a new browser window will open so that you can refer to it throughout your time in our web pages.

Accessing the Database

- Search the database
  Allows you to create your own search of the database. You can call up information about accused witches by name, place and date. Or you can examine accusations by choosing specific cultural categories and motifs.
- Show data using interactive graphs
  Links you to our online interactive graphing capabilities. You can define and create your own graphs looking at witchcraft through time by county, biographical information, and cultural categories and motifs.

Part of site of Battle of Pitreavie/Inverkeithing, 20 July 1651

REX SCOTORVM ÆTATIS 17
1583
JAMES VI OF SCOTLAND